The JOURNAL of GEOGRAPHY

CONTENTS FOR JANUARY, 1936

Mexico: Urban Life. By Ben F. Lemert and Rose V. Lemert 1

This is the fourth article in the series which Dr. and Mrs. Lemert of Duke University prepared especially for the JOURNAL, as an outcome of their extensive field studies in that country.

Rectangular Statistical Cartograms of the World. By Erwin Raisz 8

Dr. Raisz is an instructor in cartography and map curator, Harvard University. Among his many contributions are, The Physiographic Method of Representing Scenery on Maps, and The Rectangular Statistical Cartogram, which appeared in the Geographical Review, Vol. 21, and Vol. 24, respectively.

Meteorology and Aviation at the Kansas City Airport. By M. H. Shearer 11

Mr. Shearer received his B.S. degree from the University of Missouri and M.S. from the department of geography, University of Wisconsin. He has done graduate work at the University of Chicago. During the World War he was in the radio service, U. S. Navy. In 1929 and 1930 he taught meteorology at the Kansas City airport. He is now teaching physiography in Westport High School, Kansas City, Mo., and is author of "Laboratory Exercises in Physical and Economic Geography for High Schools."

Scandinavian Cities: Oslo. By O. D. von Engeln 15

Dr. von Engeln is a professor of geography at Cornell University, and is well known for his textbook in physical geography, and his books of more general interest, such as, Inheriting the Earth, and the Story Key to Geographic Names. He believes that the new geography should be written along the lines illustrated by this series of brief sketches and invites your criticisms and suggestions.

The Preparation of Geography Units by Student Teachers. By Pearle Blood 18

Miss Blood is an instructor in geography at the Maryland State Teachers College at Towson.

Teaching Unit. A Type Area in the Los Angeles Citrus Fruit District. By Walter S. Crewson 24

Mr. Crewson is a social science teacher in Washington High School, Massillon, Ohio. During the past year he has been pursuing graduate study at the University of Chicago. He wrote an article entitled, Teaching Unit on Japan, for the JOURNAL, January, 1933.

The Spread of Population over Europe. By S. S. Visher 30

Dr. Visher is a professor of geography at Indiana University and well known to all workers in the field of geography, both in geographic education and scientific research.

Pan American Institute of Geography and History. W. W. Atwood 33

OUR WORLD AND OURSELVES

Conforming with today's aims in teaching geography, these books help pupils to visualize, realize, and understand the world in which they live. In the present critical condition of the world, textbooks which make the pupil "geography minded" are particularly worthwhile.
